DEUTSCHE GESELLSCHAFT
FÜR PALLIATIVMEDIZIN

The German Society for Palliative Medicine combines scientific knowledge and human connection: more than 6,000 members are committed to „hand in hand“ care, which is what many people want for their last days of life, whilst remaining in the midst of life and in the community. With as little pain, fear and suffering as possible. Where you feel well cared for.

The German Society for Palliative Medicine has been working consequently since 1994 to help improve the quality of life of seriously ill and dying people in Germany. From the very beginning, this included the creation and continuous updating of an address directory, later this became an online database.

The “Guide to Hospice and Palliative Care in Germany”, with its more than 3,000 addresses, is updated constantly so that people who are seeking advice can find experienced doctors, teams, hospices, services and palliative care units in their area “just a few clicks away”.

The families of terminally ill children, young people and young adults can find contact points and services for this age group in a special section.

All the information in the guide is also available in Turkish, German, Russian, Arabic, Vietnamese, Romanian, French, Polish and Ukrainian.

A life-shortening illness is the source of fears and worries that are even difficult to discuss in a person’s mother tongue. Seriously ill persons from other cultures often have further questions with their families, for example regarding social law, nutrition, end-of-life care or funeral and mourning rituals.

Many hospice and palliative care facilities therefore also list their culturally specific and linguistic services in the guide.

OVERVIEW OF THE ONLINE PORTAL

PALLIATIVE CARE UNITS

Palliative care units are specialised units within a hospital for the care of people with a progressive, life-shortening illness. The aim is to alleviate the symptoms as far as possible and improve their quality of life so that seriously ill patients can spend their remaining time in familiar surroundings as far as possible. If the patient cannot be discharged and sent home, the multi-professional team from the palliative care unit are there to support the patient and their relatives.

Teams including professionals with diverse skills and qualifications alleviate the most severe symptoms

INPATIENT HOSPICES

Inpatient hospices focus on people with an advanced, life-shortening illness: the full-time and voluntary staff in the residential facilities care for and look after the seriously ill according to their personal needs, take time for the relatives and work closely with (general) practitioners experienced in palliative medicine.

PALLIATIVE CARE SERVICES

Outpatient palliative care services are available to seriously ill people in their familiar environment: specially trained nurses care for and accompany palliative patients in close cooperation with hospice services and other local providers. In this way, they also support and relieve the burden on relatives.

OUTPATIENT HOSPICE SERVICES

Many people volunteer in outpatient hospice services to support the seriously ill and their relatives at home. They offer advice on questions related to outpatient care, work together with doctors and nursing services and accompany the family in the period of death and mourning.

PALLIATIVE CARE DOCTORS

Doctors with an additional qualification in palliative medicine alleviate stressful symptoms such as pain, anxiety, shortness of breath, restlessness, nausea, etc. with the aim of achieving the best possible quality of life for the seriously ill person and their family.

HOSPITAL PALLIATIVE CARE SERVICES

A palliative care service is made up of a specialised team with different professional staff, offering palliative care for patients on all wards of a hospital. Care includes both continuous and early palliative care counselling and complementary co-treatment in case of complex symptoms and needs.

SAPV TEAMS

Specialised outpatient palliative care (SAPV) aims to maintain quality of life and self-determination for people with an advanced, life-limiting illness as far as possible. SAPV teams come to the seriously ill wherever they need them, whether at home, in a hospice or, for example, in care or integration facilities. The 24-hour availability of the SAPV teams seven days a week and the networked activity in palliative care are indispensable.
